Understanding Study Abroad in Japan

Greeting from TCJ

Studying abroad is a big step toward your future career, and gathering information beforehand is extremely important to ensure a well-planned and fulfilling study abroad experience. This guide will help you to better understand and start preparing for your study in Japan. We look forward to the opportunity to help you realize your dreams.

Benefits of studying in Japan

- Acquiring high Japanese proficiency will lead to future career advancement.
- You can get high quality education at a high level educational institution cheaper than in Europe and the United States.
- In addition to general studies such as economics, law, and engineering, you can study various fields such as animation, games, and hospitality at a higher education institution.
- You can experience Japan's unique historical culture and rich food culture.
- Japan has few crimes and you can live a study abroad life in a safe environment.

Role of Japanese language school

The purpose of studying abroad in Japan varies from student to student, such as receiving higher education, finding a job, or wanting to learn Japanese culture. Especially in order to play an active role in Japan, it is important to have knowledge of lifestyle and unique manners as well as language skills. Therefore, international students generally go on to school or get a job from a Japanese language school. There are various conditions for going on to higher education (university, graduate school, vocational school) or getting a job in Japan. By enrolling in a Japanese language school and then proceeding to the next step, you will be able to clear the conditions for going on to university, graduate school, vocational school, and getting a job.

Understanding Study Abroad in Japan

Role of Japanese language school

Japanese language school (at TCJ)

- You can get a student visa by enrolling in a Japanese language school.
- The Japanese language school will support you from getting a student visa to arriving in Japan.
- The school provides extensive life and career guidance.
- You will have the opportunity to take the JLPT 4 times and EJU 4 times during your 2 years of study.
- Even outside of class hours, you can deepen your understanding of Japanese society and acquire communication skills through cultural experiences and part-time jobs.

▼Reasons why it is difficult to go on to a higher education institution or get a job in Japan directly from your home country (outside Japan)

Graduate school / university

- You cannot take the EJU exam from your home country, which is a condition for applying for universities and graduate schools.
- There are few universities that offer direct application and examination from overseas.
- You have to apply for a visa yourself from scratch.
- Japanese ability (output/ speaking / writing) is not enough just by studying outside Japan.

Vocational school

- Most vocational schools require that you have been enrolled in a Japanese language school for at least 6 months.
- Japanese ability (output / speaking / writing) is not enough just by studying outside Japan.

Employment in Japan

- Since Japanese companies emphasize not only Japanese ability but also personality, they often conduct face-to-face interviews, making it difficult for people from overseas to find jobs.
- Japanese ability (output / speaking / writing) is not enough just by studying outside Japan.

Admission requirements for Japanese language school (TCJ)

- Completed a 12-year curriculum in your home country and have a high school diploma.
 - * If the education system in your home country is less than 12 years, there are restrictions on admission to higher education.
- Japanese language skills equivalent to JLPT N5 or higher or proof of learning 150 hours
- Have sufficient ability to pay tuition and living expenses in Japan

Understanding Study Abroad in Japan

Status of Residence

When a foreigner wishes to stay in Japan, a status of residence suitable for the activity is required. If you come to Japan study, your status of residence will be "Student".

※ In addition, you can study abroad in Japan with a short-term stay (Tourist VISA: up to 3 months) or a working holiday visa.

Certificate of Eligibility (COE)

The Certificate of Eligibility (COE) is a document required to obtain a visa, and the host organization (Japanese language school) submits the document to the Immigration Bureau and applies for it. The date of application to the Immigration Bureau is set according to the admission period. (You can only apply from one school at a time.)

Visa

This is what you need to present at immigration when entering Japan. You can apply at the embassy or consulate of your home country with a COE. If you are going to studying abroad, you will be granted a "Student visa", and the initial period of stay you can obtain is generally one year and three months. (After that, the period can be renewed for up to 2 years).

Short-term study abroad · Working Holiday

In addition to long-term study abroad, TCJ also accepts students who take Japanese language courses in the form of short-term study abroad and working holidays.

Short-term study abroad(Tourist VISA)

- Those in the designated 68 countries and regions can stay in Japan for 90 days as a traveler without applying for a visa. (The period of residence permit varies depending on the country/region.)
 - You are not allowed to work part-time.
 - After staying for a short stay, you cannot change your visa directly to "student". You will need to obtain a Certificate of Eligibility separately.
- ※ The list of 68 Countries and Regions for Visa Exemptions;
<https://www.mofa.go.jp/mofaj/toko/visa/tanki/novisa.html>
- ※ We do not support to apply for visas for short term stay other than exempt countries.

Working Holiday

- This system has been introduced between Japan and 26 countries / regions.
 - Those under the age of 30 can apply at the embassies and consulates of each region.
 - You are allowed to work.
 - It is possible to change to a student visa after a working holiday

What you can achieve by studying in Japan

Going to a Graduate School in Japan

The graduate school is where research is conducted based on specialized knowledge. There are three types: master's program (2 years), professional degree program (master's program), and doctoral program (5 years consistent, or 2 years in the first semester + 3 years in the second semester) (medical and dentistry are different). It is possible to go on to a famous graduate school / laboratory, pursue a specialized research field, and then grasp an academic career or business career in Japan.

Requirements for graduate school

✓ Completed 16 years of curriculum in home country (acquired bachelor's degree)

※ As a general rule, a graduation qualification from a 4-year university is required, but even if you graduate from a 3-year university, there is a chance to apply after the preliminary examination.

✓ Research field expertise

※ It is possible to change the specialty of the bachelor's program, but the difficulty will increase.

✓ Japanese ability (approx.) : About JLPT N1 level

Other additional requirements

✓ English ability (approx.) :

TOEIC 720~, TOEFL ibt 90~, IELTS 6.5~,
Test in Practical English Proficiency (EIKEN) Grade1

✓ EJU (approx.) :

What you can achieve by studying in Japan

Finding a Job in Japan

It is possible to find a job while attending a Japanese language school and seek employment at a Japanese company or a global company's branch office in Japan. Under the influence of the declining population, Japan is actively accepting human resources who wish to play an active role in Japan from all over the world, and opportunities for career advancement are expanding. ※There are many students who return to their home countries and find employment in Japanese companies as well.

Types of employment available

Business management, sales, marketing, trade, finance, human resources, general affairs, planning, interpreter translation, language teacher, designer, IT engineer, design, production technology, production control, etc.

Requirements for getting a job in Japan

✓Obtained a bachelor's degree or higher in your home country

✓Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) N2 or above

※More than 80% of Japanese companies are required to have N2 level or higher. In addition to JLPT, you may also see the BJT Business Japanese Proficiency Test. Both can be obtained while attending a Japanese language school.

Career and income in Japan

Career paths and income vary depending on the size of the company, industry, and occupation, but in general, the starting salary for new graduates for both Japanese and foreign-affiliated companies starts at around 3-4 million.

Dismissal regulations are strict in Japan, and employees are well taken care of. Many Japanese companies have extensive training for new employees and OJT, which makes for a more stable work environment than in other countries.

Points!

- ※Many Japanese companies value personality as well as skill and experience, so most of them seek face-to-face interviews. Consequently, it is important to have an interview after understanding the Japanese lifestyle and etiquette. Studying Japanese at a Japanese language school and becoming accustomed to life and manners in Japan will be a great advantage in your job search.
- ※TCJ has a job hunting course, and offers classes to learn business Japanese for those who want to get a job in Japan, as well as specialized job hunting measures.

Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT)

Purpose • Features

- JLPT is a 5-level Japanese Language Proficiency Test from N5 (Beginner) to N1 (Advanced).
- This is the most well-known exam conducted in 86 countries and regions in addition to Japan. This is a very important exam used by many Japanese educational institutions and Japanese companies to prove their Japanese proficiency.

Study abroad life in Japan

About Japanese Skills

If you want to go on to a Japanese university, graduate school, vocational school, or want to get a job, high Japanese language ability is essential, and communication skills are especially required. It is very difficult to go on to higher education or get a job just by studying Japanese in your home country. For this reason, it is common for many students to first enroll in a Japanese language school, establish a living foundation, improve their linguistic knowledge and communication skills in Japanese, and take measures for going on to higher education and finding employment.

High Japanese proficiency is the key to success after you go on to school or get a job.

About Japanese Language School

- Depending on the time of enrollment, you can study at a Japanese language school for up to two years. Some schools enroll twice a year (April and October) and some schools enroll four times a year (April, July, October and January).※TCJ accepts students four times a year.
- The academic year in Japan is usually from April to March.
 - ※If you want to receive higher education in Japan, you will graduate from a Japanese language school in March and then go on to higher education in April, so the study period will vary depending on the time of admission to the Japanese language school. (ex. : 1 year and 9 months for admission in July)
- While studying at a Japanese language school, some students (mainly Chinese-speaking) go to a separate cram school in preparation for going on to higher education, while others work part-time at the same time.
- Attendance rate at a Japanese language school is very important for maintaining your status of residence and going on to higher education. If the attendance rate is low, you may not be able to apply to your desired school, or you may have to return to your home country without being able to renew your visa. (Many schools require an attendance rate of 90% or higher.)

Accommodation

You can enter the Student Dormitory, which is affiliated with and owned by the school. You can also search for rental properties yourself and rent guest houses, share houses, condominiums, etc.

Study abroad life in Japan

Required cost

Studying in Japan requires other expenses in addition to tuition. Expense supporters (yourself or relatives) are required to submit a certificate of bank balance to prove their ability to pay. If you cannot prove the deposit amount of at least 1.2 to 1.5 million JPY that you can pay for the first year of study abroad, you may not be issued a certificate of eligibility. It is necessary to prepare funds in advance.

- Travel expenses to Japan (airline tickets, visas): 50,000 to 100,000 JPY
 - *Depends on region and distance
- Japanese language school tuition: 800,000-850,000 JPY for the first year, 750,000-800,000 JPY for the second year
- Living expenses: 1 million to 1.2 million JPY per year
 - *Meals, accommodation, utilities, transportation, entertainment, etc.

Part-time Job

With permission for engaging in part-time work, you are allowed to work part-time for up to 28 hours a week. However, if you exceed 28 hours a week even once, you will be forced to return to Japan without being able to renew your visa, so be sure to follow the time restrictions.

※Estimated income from part-time job:

100,000 per month x 12 months = 1.2 million yen per year

※It is possible to cover living expenses while studying abroad from a part-time job.

※Part-time jobs such as restaurants (waiters, cooking), convenience stores, supermarkets, office work, language teachers, cleaning staff, etc. are options.
